UD MUSIC DIVISION TO OFFER SUMMER WORKSHOPS

DAYTON, Ohio, June 2, 1982 -- The University of Dayton Music Division is offering two workshops this summer. Both workshops will be held on the UD campus and participants can earn academic credits.

The first workshop, "Harpsichord for Pianists," will be offered June 21 through June 30 from 10 a.m. until noon with individual practice time in the afternoons. Pianists and organists will receive basic training in harpsichord touch and Baroque interpretation through solo harpsichord literature and continuo playing. Other topics will include ornamentation and harpsichord tuning and maintenance. Each student will have individual practice time in addition to group sessions. The workshop assumes keyboard proficiency and is open to adults and qualified students. Private lessons will be available for an additional fee. Registration fee is $40 and undergraduate or continuing education credits are available. For more information on this workshop, contact workshop instructor Julane Rodgers at 298-7172.

The second workshop, "Introduction to the Muse Machine," is offered June 21 through July 2 from 1 to 5 p.m. The Muse Machine is a co-curricular arts enrichment program including music, theatre, art, and dance. The Muse Machine will be introduced in Dayton area schools during the fall of 1982. This workshop will provide background information in each of the arts and help formulate strategies to establish the Muse Machine in secondary schools. The tuition fee is $196 for participants wanting academic credit and $50 for those not wanting academic credit. Course instructors are Arthur Lithgow, Josephine Schwarz, Bess Saylor, Richard Benedum, Bing Davis, and others. For more information on this workshop, call the UD Music Division at 229-3936.
